guiding clients through every stage of the litigation process, with a focus on clear communication and strategic problem-solving. Katie represents both individuals and businesses in a wide range of disputes—from contract and construction issues to employment matters and injury claims. She also works proactively with clients to manage risk, ensure legal compliance, and help prevent disputes before they arise.

During law school, Katie was the estate planning fellow and involved in the Wills for the Underserved program connecting residents of the Eugene/Springfield area to pro bono estate planning services.
